WHAT IS CIVIL SERVICE REFORM?

IS it a Betterment of Affairs?

Special to the Courier-Journal.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—There seems to be no excuse for not making any statement concerning the subject of civil-service reform. Mr. Teller, of Easton, has done this clearly, and shows not only that he is in favor of reform, but that he cordially approves of the present system of attempting that end. He is, therefore, an Etonian, a Pendletonian, in the fullest sense that either word may be applied to him.

If there has ever been any cause to doubt the honesty of President Cleveland as to the much talked, and little understood, civil-service laws, his letter to Eaton puts his position beyond all evil or possible misrepresentation. What is meant by it; and is the President right in writing it? That is the question which each appointee must answer for himself; and further, that each appointee should answer for himself during the term of years to which he is appointed, for partisan reasons. This last only applies to 700 to 800 of the 30,000 offices within the gift of the President. The objection to the law are:

1st. That it tends to build up an aristocracy of office-holders, a class of men who are above the view of the people, but dependent only on a stereotyped examination and the favor of a few friends.

2nd. That applicants can be tested as to qualification by a committee of experts, and at the same time held liable to the same people to revolution, and the above can hardly be considered an answer.

3rd. That the law not only punishes officers above the voice of the people, but forces them to be undiscordant as to politics, and hypocrites upon their opinions.

Step Local Legislation.

Fifteen hundred local acts passed by the last Legislature, each concerning only a few persons, occupied so much time that most matters of general importance were neglected. The people have suffered from their neglect of general legislation with the plan that they had to make arrangements to their local bills. Each having discharged the duty with which was charged by his home people, he could only turn his attention to the State at large. It should be understood more fully by our legislators that they are law-makers, and not mere pocket-policemen, and each occupy a position of much greater importance than that of tinkering with turnpike charters and the like.

Every citizen has a right under the constitution to ask for any desired legislation. The Representatives are obliged to pass every bill presented. They have at least the right to discriminate and give their attention first to the most important part of the bill. [Louisville Commercial.]

So far as we know or believe the voice of the people is unanimous for stopping this "local legislation," and no doubt nine-tenths of the members elect of the Legislature are in full agreement in asking for an election. This being true, it looks like there should be no trouble for the Legislature to adopt and uphold a rule to stop it. But, the same state of facts have attended each Legislature for the past ten years, but instead of there being a decrease there is from year to year an increase of "local legislation." Each bill throws the blame on the other member, and continues to pile in the "local bills."

Wouldn't it be a good idea for the Commercial, or some enterprising man, to circulate a circular letter to each member-elect of the Kentucky Legislature asking: "If he will offer or vote for a rule to consider any local or private bill of a nature which can be disposed of in the course of a session, then he is to be assigned to day somewhere in his district."

This Murray News says: "Mr. Linday, of the place where I received my appointment, Mr. Fletcher Wood, as Internal Revenue Commissioner, and Mr. Jeffreys, yesterday for the first time, were assigned to day somewhere in his district."
